Dear Parent/Carer

Update on examinations

The government has just released information on the broad principles they are going to follow when allocating examination grades to students.

You can find the information here:

<https://www.gov.uk/government/news/further-details-on-exams-and-grades-announced>

I entirely appreciate that this statement raises as many questions as it answers. We have not yet received any guidance on how this process will be carried out so we will have to ask for your continued patience until we find out more.

Please rest assured that as soon as we can, we will share all relevant information with you.

With very best wishes

Louise Davies
